ZORA NEALE HURSTON

novelist, folklorist, journalist and critic, was born c.1891 in Eatonville, Florida, America's first incorporated Black town. She became one of the great writers of the Harlem Renaissance of the 20s and 30s and the acknowledged inspiration for a new generation including Maya Angelou, Toni Morrison and Alice Walker. Flamboyant and unpredictable she scandalised her contemporaries with her exuberant theatricality and her irreverent, mocking self-confidence, typified by her crowning herself 'Queen of the Niggerati'. The mythology which grew up around her outrageous lifestyle won for her a notoriety which has often obscured the depth of her commitment to Black culture, including voodoo, song and dance as well as language. By the 50s she was a virtual recluse, alienated from the burgeoning Black civil rights movement. She died penniless and neglected in Port Pearce, Florida in 1960.

1569 "Beavis and Butt-head Try Yogurt"

On TV one time we saw these chicks eating yogurt. So we went to Nation's Finest Yogurt at the mall to meet chicks. Except we had to eat yogurt instead. Yogurt sucks.

It's like old milk, except in a different color. But, huh huh, even if you can't eat it, you can paint with it. Heh heh heh heh m heh heh heh.
